ABOUT GLOBAL ELECTRONICS COUNCIL

The Global Electronics Council (GEC) is a mission-driven non-profit launched in 2006 and dedicated to creating a more just and sustainable world. Our focus on electronics is due to our recognition that electronics have become increasingly pervasive, finding their way into products within our home, car, clothing, toys, and even the watches we wear. While the technologies that rely on electronics can provide tremendous societal good, they are also the source of significant negative environmental and social impacts. GEC acts as the fulcrum point between the institutional purchasers who buy electronics and the manufacturers who produce them.

We support large-scale purchasers, both public and private, with tools and resources. By deciding to buy sustainable technology, institutional purchasers leverage their purchasing decisions towards creating a more sustainable and just world. We are also committed to ensuring that sustainable IT products from micro, small and medium enterprises (MSMEs) are highlighted to purchasers globally and that MSMEs are a part of the global technology supply chain.

GEC manages ecolabels to assist purchasers in identifying credible sustainable technology products and services. GEC’s EPEAT ecolabel is the leading Type 1 ecolabel covering products and services from the technology sector. It offers purchasers access to more products from a broader range of manufacturers, including MSMEs, than any other comparable ecolabel.
